

PRESS RELEASE

Air France and KLM Flying Blue Frequent Flyer Program Members Now Receive Privileged Access to Regus 750 Business Lounges Around the World

Amstelveen, Paris, Roissy 27 September 2006 - From October 1st to December 31st, members of Flying Blue, the joint frequent flyer program from Air France and KLM, will benefit from special conditions when joining the Regus Group Network Access program. This unique membership program provides Flying Blue members with free access to all 750 business lounges from Regus, the global leader in providing professional workplaces.

Platinum Flying Blue members will receive complimentary Regus Network Access membership. Gold, Silver and Ivory members will be granted up to 50 percent off the regular membership price of € 300 to this membership program for business travellers.

Simply by presenting their Network Access Card in any Regus business centre, card holders will have:

- Unlimited access to 750 business lounges across 350 cities in 60 countries that feature high-speed Internet, of which 30 lounges are located close to international airports.
- Preferred rates and priority booking for fully equipped day offices, meeting rooms and videoconference facilities at any Regus location.
- Access to on-site business services through Regus' highly trained administrative and technical staff.

Equipped with premier facilities and business support services, Regus business lounges allow Network Access members to check their email, prepare for a meeting, surf the web or relax with a complementary cup of coffee or tea.

In addition, all Flying Blue members will receive:

- 3000 Award Miles when joining Regus Network Access.
- 3 months free membership to Network Access program, their card being valid until December 2007.

This agreement reinforces the existing partnership between Flying Blue and Regus which already offers Flying Blue members 500 Award Miles when booking a meeting room for one day in any of the Regus business centres in France, The Netherlands, Switzerland, Italy, Spain or Portugal.

Flying Blue, the loyalty program of Air France and KLM.

With 11.4 million members, the Air France and KLM frequent flyer program offers travellers the opportunity to earn and redeem Miles on flights from Air France, KLM and other SkyTeam airlines, as well as on services and transactions of some 130 airline and non-airline partners. The global network of 18,000 flights and 900 destinations will enable customers to benefit from all the advantages that Europe's leading loyalty program has to offer.

Structured in four levels (Ivory, Silver, Gold, Platinum), Flying Blue makes it possible to track the flight behaviour of each of its customers and reward them with Miles accordingly. Innovative, forward-looking and easy to use, Flying Blue offers members the freedom to manage their account how and when they want by logging on to www.airfrance.com or www.klm.com internet sites.
